ENVIRONMENTAL RESPONSIBILITY STATEMENT

The environmental crisis is impacting all of us, and we must act urgently.

As a non-profit arts organisation and artist collective working in a variety of contexts, we are on the move most of the time. This means that travel is a big environmental consideration for us as we work. It also means that the places where we work are important to us because we are only there temporarily, so we wish to 'walk lightly,' respecting people, communities, animals, and the systems that connect them together. Our core value of making visible that which has been overlooked also means a responsibility to care for the overlooked in the environment.

While we don't have all the answers, we want to commit to slower travel when we can. We already do a lot of our work via digital meetings and communications. We also believe in the benefits of curating and producing locally and do so as much as possible. We have just joined Gallery Climate Coalition (GCC) and are working to become an active member. This means that we will commit to an annual CO<sub>2</sub> emissions audit and will develop our own Green Team to keep us informed.

Some other immediate areas where we can improve are:

- Reducing waste
- Using circular packaging and supporting other circular economies
- Using local low/zero emission transports
- Paperless working
